

I'm excited for the second half of the summer to be starting. I'm looking forward to welcoming the children moving from Ms. Jen's room and into my room. We have many fun things planned for the rest of the summer.

In the month of July, we will be discussing the author, Eric Carle. We love to read books. So, if you have any books you would like to donate, we would appreciate it. Throughout the month of July, the children will be doing art projects that tie into the Eric Carle books that we will be reading.

We will be doing some painting with the children. The painting helps with the fine motor skills. The children will get to experience different sensory tables such as a water table with cups, so they can scoop the water and pour. We also will be working with a rice table. I will add cups and spoons to the rice table, so the children can scoop the rice and put it into the cups to be poured out again.

We will be still having water play on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Everyone will need to continue to bring their bathing suit, towel, and water shoes. The children have so much fun on water play days. I know with this hot weather, it is such a treat to be able to cool down on water play days. On Fridays, we will continue to have ice cream in the afternoons for snack.

Please remember to put sunscreen on in the morning and in the afternoon, we will put more on. Everyone will also need a change of clothes in their baskets. We will need monthly snack donations and monthly wipe donations. Thank you for this opportunity to work with your children! I'm looking forward to seeing the children grow and flourish in the two-year-old room!
